

THE GLEICHEN CALL

VOLUME XXXIV NO. 33

GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 29, 1941

SUBSCRIPTION $2.00 PER YEAR

RURAL MECHANICAL COURSE TO OPEN HERE NOVEMBER 10

Far boys between the ages of sixteen and thirty who live in the Gleichen area have a wonderful opportunity to improve their knowledge of farm motors, farm machinery, blacksmithing and carpentry by attending the Rural Mechanical Course to be held in Gleichen from November 10 to December 20, under the Dominion Provincial Youth Training Program. Conducted under the direction of the extension service, department of agriculture, this school will provide instruction and training in subjects relating to agriculture engineering, which the boys have little opportunity of studying elsewhere.

Agriculture in Western Canada is becoming more mechanized and there is a greater need for the individual farm operator to understand the adjustment and care of the various pieces of farm machinery he is using. The efficient operator must also be in a position to do ordinary farm blacksmithing and carpentry. Some general knowledge of wood and farm carpentry. The purpose of the Rural Mechanical Course is to provide this information and instruction. It is not intended to make experts out of young men who attend, but it will give them the basic principles underlying the care and operation of farm motors and the farm machinery ordinarily used in the district. Blacksmithing is a trade which takes years to learn, but with a few weeks practice under expert guidance, almost anyone can learn to do simple blacksmithing. Some knowledge of carpentry is also most useful on the farm. Instruction in general agriculture will also be given by competent authorities.

Boys attending the course will live in town or at home. If they are not too far distant they may stay at home and drive to school in the mornings and back in the evening. Financial assistance to defray part of the cost of board and room is available in necessitous circumstances. Shops will be fitted up with modern tools and competent instructors will be on hand to give those attending the basic information concerning the subjects to be taught.

The schools also provide an opportunity for boys to become acquainted with one another and to discuss matters of local and national interest. Classes are not held in the evening and it was customary in last year's schools for the boys to practice draughts and other activities during the winter evenings.

Every boy residing within a reasonable distance of Gleichen should endeavor to attend this course. It is his duty to become as efficient as possible in the line of work they are following under present trying conditions. There is greater need at this time to save material particularly steel, and the man who can properly operate his farm equipment is less likely to have breakage that requires replacement with steel badly needed in war industries. Another most important factor in the saving out can be made in the consumption of fuel oil providing the farm tractor is properly operated. Many tractors waste fuel because of improper adjustment of carburetors and other parts of the engines.

Boys who attend this Youth Training School will be serving the national war effort by becoming more efficient farmers who can produce their farm products at less cost. By obtaining instruction in farm blacksmithing and carpentry they will be able to perform, right on their own farms, some of the jobs which are otherwise have to be done by men in towns and cities. In this way more labor will be released to work in the factories producing war machines.

Those who read this article should try to attend the school and pass on the information to their friends who may be interested. The mechanical course is the opportunity hundreds of boys on farms have been seeking. A small number of students accepted is limited; an early application should be made.

News Items of Local Interest

On Thursday evening November 6, Mr. Ainslie, M.L.A., will speak at the Shumrock school on "Alberta and Her Possibilities." This speech will be illustrated with slides. Musical numbers and refreshments will follow. This meeting will be sponsored by the Meadowbrook S. C. Group in place of the regular meeting which was to have been on October 30th. An interesting time is expected. At is invited to attend.

Leslie Minard is the only man from town that we have heard of who took a few days off to hunt antelope this year. He was accompanied by Bob Leggett of Calgary and between them they bagged three of the animals in the area near Medicine Hat. They had a lot of car trouble otherwise they certainly would have got their quota.

On Friday evening, Halloween, the young ladies of the local Red Cross branch will stage their first dance in the Community Hall. It will be a sort of a spooky affair and it is hoped there will be a large attendance since any profit realized will be handed over to the Red Cross. This dance will be the first Halloween dance staged here for many years and it is also the dancing season for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Hunter, will leave next week for Wetaskiwin where he has been transferred by the Calgary Power Co. to look after their interests there. Herb has been in Gleichen for almost a decade coming here from Rockyford. Here he has quite a large territory to look after which included Arrowwood, Shouder, Queenston, Mill and Cluny.

Auctioneer Commodore Allen was in town early Monday morning en route to Calgary. He was in a particular variety that was certainly not the variety they thought they were producing and which they intended to grow.

This situation often caused needless loss of income to the farmer. In some instances in the rust areas farmers thought they were growing rust-resistant varieties, and actually they were growing Marquis or Reward or Red Bobs, which are susceptible to rust. In other instances farmers who wished to grow an early variety were actually found to be growing quite a late maturing variety which, in some districts has been caught by the heavy autumn rains and still remains unthreshed.

Some of these farmers had paid good money for the seed which they used and which the Crop Testing Plan analysis found was not of the variety it was represented to be.

All this means that farmers should be very careful about the seed they buy. Registered and certified seed in the sack can always be depended upon. It is interpreted rigorously both in the field and in the sack by the Canadian Seed Growers' Association and by the Dominion government.

cularly happy mood and his face was wreathed in smiles. Mr. Allen stated the auction sale he held Saturday for Mrs. Scully near Milo, was attended by a great crowd. The bidding was brisk and the prices realized was fine. There was a great crowd on hand and some of the people came from as far as 70 miles away. A lot of the buyers brought trailers along with them to carry home the goods they hoped to buy. He added that he hoped to stage another sale like that providing he could get a number of people to supply articles they wished to get rid of. Commodore went on to say that he was holding a sale for A. D. Arkell north of Cluny on Thursday November 6th starting at 1 p.m. and forthwith ordered the necessary orders for the sale in this office. Just as he was heading for the door he modestly but proudly informed us that Mrs. Allen had presented him with a son on Oct. 1st. No wonder Commodore was all smiles.

THE WEEK IN EDMONTON

FACTS ABOUT CANCER

A lump in the breast is a danger signal a warning to that person to seek medical advice. Not that a lump in the breast means that it is cancer. It is probably not but it is also true that a certain number are and many more may become cancerous if neglected for any length of time.

A lump in the breast is a very definite danger. It is a red light of warning but like a red light is becomes a safeguard if precautions are taken.

What should be done if you discover a lump in your breast? First of all don't get panicky or hysterical about it. It is not nearly so serious as many other conditions if attended to at once. There is practically a hundred per cent chance that nothing serious will come of it if proper medical advice is sought early.

Don't try to massage it away or use somebody's "wonder oil" on it. You are only spreading it and making it more difficult for later treatment.

Don't be ashamed of it. Don't try to hide it or forget about it. SEE A DOCTOR AT ONCE. Let nothing delay you because the delay is dangerous. Thousands of lives would be saved every year if it were not for the delay. Don't wait for pain to occur with the idea that if it isn't painful it cannot be cancer. Unfortunately, EARLY CANCER IS NOT PAINFUL.

Don't put off consultation on account of expense. If you are needed by your family it is all the more reason for looking after yourself.

—Alberta Branch Canadian Society for the Control of Cancer.

Doubt as to the worth of the new federal orders in the program of price-fixing and bonusing was voiced by Hon. D. Bruce MacMillan, minister of agriculture. Mr. MacMillan said that if eastern farmers are to receive financial assistance worth $50,000,000 and western farmers assistance worth only $15,000,000, then some explanation would be necessary. Naturally the farmers of Alberta will be interested in the freight assistance policy rendered to eastern farmers and its effect upon the price demand and disposition of feed and live stock in Alberta.

Government members of the legislature sitting in the federal acceptance of the federal government's tax transfer plan must be under protest. They also deplored the action of the Dominion in creating a situation which compels the province to accept

Boys we've known since babies

● We see them board the train after their last leave home . . . boys we've known since they were babies. We say "Good Luck . . . we're all pulling for you", as we bid them Good Bye. But are we? Are we "pulling" . . . all we can? What are we doing to help them? Are we giving them the things they need so badly . . . ships and tanks and guns and planes and ammunition? Are we giving them all they need? That's one thing we can do . . . we who stay at home . . . one thing we must do. We must provide the money so much needed to win the war . . . and one way to do that is to buy more War Savings Certificates.

The help of every Canadian is needed for Victory. In these days of war the thoughtless selfish spender is a traitor to our war effort. A reduction in personal spending is now a vital necessity to relieve the pressure for goods; to enable more and more labour and materials to be diverted to winning the war. The all-out effort, which Canada must make, demands this self-denial of each of us.

Veteran Journalist

Editor of London Publication Continued After 10 Years Service
 WINSTON CHURCHILL is one of the busiest men in the world, and at the same time the heaviest burden of responsibility, but he took time out of his schedule and made a special trip to the city of London in honor of Sir Enslay Carr, on the occasion of his fiftieth anniversary of the News of the World. The King also sent a message of congratulation and good wishes.

Fifty years an editor—and still going strong! It is an extraordinary record, and yet not the record for the extraordinary C. R. Pegg was editor of The Manchester Guardian for 57 years. But then Scott was in a class by himself, and not only in the matter of professional longevity. He was one of the giants of British journalism, and no one can claim this for Sir Enslay Carr, good man and sound journalist though he is. That Sir Enslay has made a success of his job is evident, not only from the fact that he has held it so long, but that under his management The News of the World has grown from a circulation of the most modest beginnings to a circulation of over 10 million—probably the largest weekly circulation in the world—P. O. D. in Saturday Night.

To Sell Goods

Urges Advertising Be Kept Up To Preserve Buying Habits

Col. William Chevalier, of New York, publisher of Business Week, told the Toronto Advertising and Sales Club that neglect of advertising during the present emergency will have a disturbing effect on business, but that under his management scheme of things becomes normal again.

Col. Chevalier suggested management of business operating under a war or defence economy should look beyond existing conditions, and said the buying habit must be retained to offset the period of re-establishment to come.

He said again it is going to become necessary to go to the people and interest them in products," he said. "The buying habit will be interfered with because certain products will not be available to the public others will be rationed; still more will be suspended, to a degree. Any neglect in selling and advertising is bound to produce a depressing effect later, he said. The buying habit must be retained; products should not lose touch with products."

Increase in Marriages

Canadian Towns And Cities Show The Strongest Trend

In Canadian towns and cities of 10,000 and over, the number of marriages increased 23 per cent. in 1940; in all Canada, 19 per cent. In the first year over 100,000 urban marriages were "up" 60 per cent. compared with the same period two years ago. In 1940 the number of marriages in towns and cities represented an increase of 12½ per cent. in all Canada, less than 6½ per cent. While the figures for the Dominion as a whole are therefore somewhat smaller than the reports from urban centres indicated might be the case, they are impressive enough. As a result of the higher birthrate, the "natural increase" in Canada's population (excess of births over deaths) rose from 120,517 in 1939 to 132,988 in 1940.—The Toronto Star.

Better Than Perfect

President Of Pan American Airways System Enthusiastic About R.A.F.

Picturing the organization of the British Royal Air Force as "at about 105 per cent. of Juan T. Trippe, president of the Pan American Airways System, predicted on his return to New York by clipper that there would be no daylight between the two countries and that while night raids were still expected they would prove very costly to the Germans. In England he had an opportunity to see many of the 500 new airplanes built about Great Britain and that after the R.A.F. pilots standing by their warmed-up machines ready to take off in 20 seconds if the enemy is sighted, "you get the impression of a fine well-rounded organization, molded together, functioning as a unit."

Vitamin Bread

Hope To Establish A Standard Grade Of Flour For The Purpose

Hope for establishment of a government standard grade of flour and bread containing a minimum amount of vitamin B1 was expressed in an address prepared for delivery at Guelph, Ont., by Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist, Ottawa.

He spoke of the regional convention of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculture.

Dr. Newman suggested the vitamin should come from the wheat itself and not from synthetic processes, and that measures be passed insuring that the flour be prepared for sale would be complying with legal minimum requirements.

"We believe that if and when such a loaf comes to be recognized by the medical people of this country and sponsored by our own department of health, that our wheat will once again come to be regarded as the 'real stuff of life,'" he continued.

"We feel that an increased consumption of the new type of bread which we feel will sooner or later appear on the market, not only will do good to the wheat and the people but will assist materially in increasing the consumption of bread as a whole."

Tests of commercial flours used by bakers at present showed vitamin B1 as approximately 150 international units per pound of flour. Dr. Newman said while the objective desired was at least 400 international units per pound.

DANGER TO FACE Air Training Plan

To Train Ground Crew Personnel For Overseas Work

Hon. C. G. Power, minister of national defence for air, said that the Commonwealth Air Training Plan is producing 25 per cent. more pilots, air observers, air gunners and wireless operators than was expected when the plan was first projected.

Mr. Power also revealed that training of ground crews has been so successful that it is proposed to man all 25 R.C.A.F. squadrons to be formed overseas. R.C.A.F. squadrons now are manned by Royal Air Force ground crews.

Several thousand ground crew personnel will be trained for overseas work, he said.

Another common enemy that's a menace to mankind

Summer diarrhoea of babies, typhoid fever, eye diseases and other dangerous and painful infections come in the wake of the common house fly. We face this danger every year during the hot weather. Lectures and writings by other experts, health authorities, and other experts have done a lot towards educating people to fight this menace.

However, you cannot educate a fly and flies being no respecters of persons, still invade our homes and stores with impunity. When you consider that the bacteria on a single fly's hairy body may number five million and that these carriers of germs are born and bred in filth which may be deposited in food or on the infant in his cot, it can readily be understood how important it is to exterminate every fly without delay.

And, flies, if left alone, multiply phenomenally. Of the many methods for killing flies, probably the quickest, most humane and most readily to place a few Wilson's Fly Pads in the most suitable places throughout the home. They're inconspicuous and kill all the flies—house and for all. It's such an easy way to eliminate the fly menace in our homes and stores and thus help make our community a healthier place in which to live.

Another point of interest to people who suffer from those troublesome flies being no respecters of persons, Wilson's Fly Pads offer a sure-fire remedy. Just a teaspoonful of sugar, water and a Wilson's Fly Pad is all that's needed.

Not Taking Advice

Nazis Have Drooped Leaflets Telling Britons To Get Up

Leaflets dropped on the British Isles by Nazi planes advised Britons to get up because they would be doomed to starvation "this year or early next year." The leaflets, single sheets printed on both sides in English, quote various statements by President Roosevelt on British aid and German claims of the sinking of innumerable British ships in the battle of the Atlantic. British avenues of supply are being "finally" closed, the leaflets said.

CHAPTER XIV.

Devona launched her job-hunt that very morning. Clipping the "Help Wanted-Female" column from the big daily paper she'd bought at the station, she borrowed a street map from the desk clerk and planned a campaign.

Naturally, the first day she didn't find anything. Aching tired, she forced down a bowl of soup and a sandwich at a corner drug shop and plodded back to the hotel to crawl gratefully into the hard, narrow bed. It had been terribly hard work—walking the long blocks between addresses to save the carfare, waiting in crowded offices, staring helplessly for every interview.

But she wasn't really discouraged, she assured herself when she fell asleep at a corner drug shop. She couldn't expect to find a job the very first time she tried.

Not even the second or third week. And, probably, the first week. And by having a "merchant's lunch" at the Owl every noon, she could substitute fruit and milk in her room for dinners. She lost a little weight, of course, but that was to be expected. More alarmingly, her slim resources fast grew slender. That was to be expected, too, she realized with threats of panic fraying her courage. She'd have to find something soon.

At the end of the third week Devona took stock again. This time with desperation gnawing at her. Every morning she'd met the same answer. "Sorry, we want experienced help."

Lips trembling with embarrassment—and sudden terror—Devona didn't try to answer, walked blindly out of the shabby foyer into the street.

Into the street! That's where she'd be after 3:30 this afternoon if she didn't find something.

Lips trembling with embarrassment—and sudden terror—Devona didn't try to answer, walked blindly out of the shabby foyer into the street.

The foyer was deserted. Past the luncheon hour now, it was still too early for the cocktail crowd. "Hello, it is you said you wanted to see me," the doorman said at her elbow, watched her suspiciously.

Devona hadn't said she wanted to see him, and she had no business to be in the foyer. But she had to say something. Anything to give her an excuse to sit down and rest a while in one of these deep-cushioned maroon velvet chairs.

"Mr. —" A name leaped to her tongue out of some subconscious recess of her distracted mind. "Mr. Macias." Mrs. Macias, please.

"Certainly, miss." The doorman's attitude changed instantly. "I'll see he's here."

Drawing a deep breath, Devona waited into a chair, prayed that Mr. Macias would not be in or would be busy, or something like that.

But no luck. He was in and he would be delighted to see her immediately.

Dully she followed the doorman across the foyer to the gray-panelled door marked "Manager." Now for the showdown and then back out into the streets again. If only she didn't feel so terribly hollow inside, no light-heart.

For a moment, Mr. Macias, alone in his elaborate, maroon-draped office, studied her coldly from behind his broad gray and chrome desk.

Then, his smile breaking suddenly into recognition, he rose, came to meet her hand, and sat down.

"But, Miss Macias, please. This is an unexpected pleasure," and pulling a silver-velvet chair closer, he said, "I am so happy to see you again. You are in town on a little pleasure trip?"

"Not—exactly," Devona smiled at her words. "I'm here on business."

"Shopping, then, perhaps. And look, you will stay for the cocktail hour. I promised you some excitement. My own chair, his handsome dark eyes quick in their appraisal of her.

"Well, it's been nice of you to see me," she said, just as if she noticed nothing of his changed manner. "And now, do hear of a job, let me know."

Macias rose, too. "You must leave your glass, Miss Rebouche. I will be getting in touch with you."

Even the pseudo-Mexican accent had disappeared from his speech. Not the bounding, anxious intonation, but still—and more dangerously now—the bold, dark-eyed gallant.

Panicked a little, Devona tried to divert her nervous feet to the door. But the long, wearing hours of waiting and waiting, the lack of food, the discouragement—all took sudden toll of her flagging strength.

For a moment, the door she faced wavered crazily, then slipped farther and farther out of reach. She was fainting! Terrified, she clutched at a chair back, missed it, felt herself fall, fell—falling—into a soft, black cloud.

But she wasn't faint! Not here—not now. Mustn't desperately try to get her way back. She must keep her wits. She must!

It was no use. Even the floor was slipping beneath her now. She was somehow—it didn't matter. (To Be Continued.)

Mail For Soldiers

Name of Post Office Should Be Included When Mailing To Troops

The complete addressing of mail intended for soldiers at training in Canada is the cause of numerous delays in delivery. Honourable Minister, P. Mulock, K.C., Postmaster General, to obviate this situation, again requests the full co-operation of the public.

It is essential that the post office place name be included in the address of mail posted to soldiers still in Canada because their letters are handled by the military offices and not by the Army Postal Service. The omission of the "name of place where the soldier is located" has resulted in many errors and parcels being forwarded to the Base Post Office, where it is found that the Units named in the addresses are still in Canada. The resultant delay thus caused, and the extra work thrown upon the Canadian Postal Service, is a matter of regret.

Full delivery in Canada should be addressed with the usual complete particulars—Regimental Number, Rank and Name, and the name of the Unit (i.e., Company or Section, Squadron, Battery, Holding Unit, etc.).

For a moment Macias only stared at her. "But you are serious?"

"Of course. Terribly serious," she said, a little. "You see I'm—hungry."

"But surely, your friend Mr. Brasher—"

"Mr. Brasher and I are no longer—friends," she swallowed hard. "I'm not used to being young and beautiful, even knowers like I am. I left home for—personal reasons."

"Come, that's too bad," he said, just a quarter. "You could forgive and—"

"No, I'm never going back," she said quietly. "Not even if I place an overdose of sleeping powder in it. No, that's behind me—forever. Now, I have my own way to make."

"But you are very young—and very beautiful—to face the world alone," Devona shrugged. "Nevertheless, I have to get a job. You don't, by the way, know of any one who needs an untrained, inexperienced girl who speaks three languages, do you?"

Buck it up tight now and feel like a million!

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It filters the blood, gets rid of waste, supplies the body with energy, and is the source of your blood. When your liver gets out of order, you feel tired, dizzy, and out of control. You are constipated, and kidneys can't work properly. You feel "blue" and "downy," and your appetite is poor.

Youths Of Military Age Constantly Escaping To John De Gaulle

Janet Plaffner, writing in The New Yorker, says: In an effort to channelize the energy behind French resistance into positive action, the Free French have selected, as their recruiting slogan, "We have nothing but our bare breasts." They are not stay homes and merely try to stir up trouble. Let us see and join up.

Charles Fox said that restaurateurs were the most bloody of all revolutionaries, and he might have added that reformations are the best mode of preventing the necessity of either.

Reform. Every reform, however necessary, will by weak minds be carried to an excess which will itself need reforming.

Women For War Work

Several thousand women volunteers will be enlisted within the next few months to serve as full-time auxiliaries in the armed forces. War Services Minister Thompson announced at a press conference.

The women volunteers will form a part of which women will be sent to the army, navy and air force will be supplied by personnel are required.

Applications for entry to the women's corps will be received by the War Services Department and the National Defence Board will organize the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

National Defence officials estimated that from 2,000 to 3,000 women can be absorbed into this corps in the next six months.

Mr. Thomson asked that women withhold their applications to join until the necessary regulations have been worked out. He said that voluntary recruits would be taken even if they were not members of voluntary women's organizations which have undertaken training in Canada.

The plan has no connection with recruiting now being done in Canada for National Service in the United Kingdom.

The women will be engaged as drivers of light motor vehicles, as cooks and waitresses in hospitals and messes, as telephone helpers, store women, telephone operators, messengers and clerical workers.

They will be uniformed and will be required to enroll on the same basis as soldiers. Their pay will be somewhat lower than that of soldiers.

Mr. Thomson said the present call for service in Canada, but both ministers agreed service overseas on a voluntary basis would be considered if the demand arose.

Australia Takes Action

War Industry Strikes And Lockouts Outlawed For Duration

Strikes and lockouts in war industries have been outlawed in Australia "for the duration." The Prime Minister threatened to use the emergency powers given him last year to send "dissatisfied representatives for such stoppages" to a concentration camp. At the same time he warned uncooperative employers that he would not hesitate to take over their plants.

With the exception of New Zealand, Australia has proportionately the strongest Labor party in the British Commonwealth of Nations. Thirty-six of the 74 seats in its House of Representatives are occupied by Laborites. Yet that has not prevented Australia from banning strikes and other stoppages of work which would interfere with its all-out effort.

A Good Opportunity

To Establish Better Standard Of Housing After The War

Little can be done to improve the war. But after the war is over, there will be the opportunity to establish a Canadian standard of housing, a standard comparable with that of the best of health and education. There is no point in protecting the health of our children and giving them an expensive education only to have them spend 16 hours out of the 24 in slum and semi-slum conditions—Calgary Herald.

EDMONTON

Opposition of the federal government's tax transfer plan must be under protest. They also deplored the action of the Dominion in creating a situation which compels the province to accept the proposed agreement.

The taxation transfer entails surrender by the province of a long list of tax sources including personal income taxes, corporation income taxes, corporation taxes on banks, electric and power companies, express, finance, gas, grain, insurance, investment, land, loan, pipe line, telegraph and trust companies, as well as miscellaneous companies not classified. The province would also be required to prevent any municipally imposed income or corporation taxes. The caucus resolved that "the proposed agreements constitute a flagrant violation of the rights of the province and involve centralization of power, the very principle we are combating in the present European struggle."

Praise for Alberta's educational system was given by Dr. Raymond F. Hawk, director of research of the Eastern Washington College of Education, at a rotary meeting in Edmonton. Dr. Hawk was in the city to address the convention of teachers. "These of the main parts of our system are definitely an asset," he declared.
